Re: Building Fastener Price Increase

Dear Customer

As you would be aware, there have been enormous cost increases as a direct consequence of the steel price increases earlier this year, only part of which Bremick has passed on to the market.

More recently, the Australian dollar has depreciated by more than 44%. This has added to the cost pressures across all fastener products. Consequently, in early November most Industrial Fastener wholesalers increased fastener prices by around 20%.

Since this time, Building Fastener wholesalers have announced to the market price increases totalling 8% to 12.5% after taking into account increases to the cost of painting, cyclone plate assembling and trade pack surcharges.

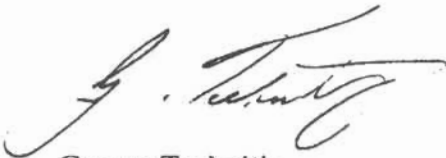

During this volatile period, Building Fastener price increases have been small relative to the impact of the cost increases that have taken place.

Bremick will only be increasing self drilling screw prices on average by 9.6%

Bremick will be notifying you of your new pricing arrangements during January 2009.

We thank you for your understanding of the circumstances and valued support.

Yours sincerely
